To whom it may concern

Thank you for your interest in my profile, I hope this letter gives you a good overview of my educational background and professional experience so that you may make a more informed decision in partnerships.

I hold a Bachelors Degree in Electrical Engineering and a Masters Degree in Computer Science. My educational background provides me with electronic fundamentals so that I can build a proficiency in software from the bottom up. I have participated in various projects in my career giving me a wide range of experience dealing with system software, firmware testing, operating systems, simulation/emulation and basic web applications.

My professional career has been split between working for Intel and working for Apple. Combined I've acquired more than 15 years of experience in the industry of consumer electronics. In addition to those two major employers I have been involved in other entrepreneurial ventures.

Amongst the most important skills for me has been the ability to understand fundamentals and apply them for thinking from first principles. This has allowed me to quickly adapt to each new project and learn a new technology stack each time. This is essential when new projects bring in a new technology that must be integrated into larger established systems.

My goal is to make a large impact for a growing organization and accelerate its success. If you think that I could be a good fit for your organization feel free to reach out to me.
